2010 Ford Fusion Hybrid visits Northville

Nicole R. Jackson
Special Writer

In this challenging economy, the auto dealers of every brand are all having a tough time. All auto manufacturers have had steep sales drops in the last 6-8 months.

With spring being here hybrids are the talk of the town and will be the new wave of the future. The new name in the game is Green. While Ford, GM, and Chrysler have all had sales declines, Ford has weathered the storm a little better thus far. One dealer, Tom Holzer Ford in Farmington Hills, has already sold 12 Ford Fusion Hybrids to local families.

To showcase the new technology of the Fusion, Tom Holzer Ford is displaying Hybrids at Old Church Square in downtown Northville beginning May 29 and continuing for a few weeks into June. There will be crowds in downtown Northville for the Friday Night concerts in Town Center. What better way is there to be proactive than by taking the product to potential buyers? We hope the crowds will also visit all the merchants in Old Church Square such as: As The Page Turns Bookstore & Gallery, Stampeddler, Broughton Music, Steve Fecht Photography, and Scottie's Kitchen.
